Our South Pacific Correspondence. Lama, June 7, 1862. Affairs in Peru, Chili, Bolivia, New Granada, and Ecuador-Naval News.

Few local events have occurred in our city since my last. Flores and his expedition continue to beerb public attention, and the new policy followed by our government, with respect to interference, is very discouraging for his partisans. General Echemque is well aware of the inevitable war that was going to take place between Peru and New Granada, on account of the simulated aid given to that general, and appears desirous of continuing the good intelligence hitherto maintained with the northern countries. General D. Alesandre Destus, Governor of Callao, has been sent to Guavaquil on board the Peravian war steamer Rimac, with a secret mission, which is no other than to ascertain the condition of affairs in that place. It is generally believed here that Fiores will be left to his fate, and we hourly expect the news of a dispersion of his troops, and the sauve qui pent which necessarily must easue. In the meantime, the diplomatic correspondence is maintained with General Urbina, who apparently seems satisfied.

A change in the cabinet has taken place, in the appointment of Don Bartholome Herrera to a mission in Italy. It is rumored that Senor Par Soldan, more popularly known by the scubriquet of Addison, with which he signs his ably and cleverly written articles in the papers, will be appointed to his place. Colonel D. J. M. Iturregui, who represented Peru in England, in 1845, has been appointed Prefect of the Department of Libertad.

The advices which we constantly receive from Ecuador confirm the miscrable state of Flores' army; disease and desertion had thinned its ranks. However, the gallant general continued to keep a strict military discipline in the melée of expeditionists. He intended to attack Mashala, storming the position of El Morre; but after landing 200 Chilenos, they shamefully deserted, compromising another body of troops, which is arcely had time to take to the beats. The Portsmouth and Staritan, United Start claims, were in the river. Pana, the place of the person of the river. I apprehend that before long he will be eventually obliged to make a retreat. General Urbina, supported by the government of New Granada, has organized troops, and has put in a proper state of defence the whole country. Undoubtedly he has the means to resist the invasion. The New Granada general. D. Manuel M. Franco, had occupied Imbabura with 2,000 troops, and General Herrera was marching from Pasto to the frontier, with r inforcements. Briones, a celebrated robber, and eight of his gang, were executed in Guayaquil.

composed of forty-two deputies, or fourteen for each of the provinces of Cuenca, Guayaquil, and Quito.

The party disturbances in New Granada seem at an end for the present, with the complication of affairs with Peru. However, if General Lopez is seeking a cause of quarrel, as his message to Congress clearly shows. I do not entertain the idea that he will be able to hold his place. There is a general growing discontent with his administration, and he has only maintained tranquillity by employing some influential members of the opposition, and by keeping a large army. In his message he asks for authority to send auxiliary forces to Ecuador, and to declare war with those States which have protected the expedition of General Flores; also to negotiate a lean of sixteen millions of rials, and to augment the army to 20,000 men. Then, following the old tack of Rosas, he resigned the Presidency, which, of course, was not admitted.

Gen Obando had the Sceretaryship of War offered to him, with the object, that General Barriga should have taken command of the Southern division of the army; but it appears that this general is more disposed to take the command of the army himsolf, and accordingly refused the appointment.

General Espixa, Colonel Briceno, and D. Mariano Ospina, accused of rebellion, have been acquitted by the court.

Congress was discussing the abolition of all scientific grades, reforms in public instruction, the completion of the manumission laws, organization of the national guard, &c. So the sessions were very naimated.

The financial embarmasments of the republic of Belivia seem to be on the increase. It is calculated that the deficit in the revenue of this year will be more than half a million of dollars; consequently the government will have to apply for a foreign boan, pasticularly as the bank question is still unsettied. No arrangement has yet been made, and the expertation is prohibited for the present.

TRAVEL ALONG THE KANSAS EVEN AND TREGUER
THE POTAWATTOMIE MISSION—RAIN—BADROADS—
CHOLERA—RETURNING EMIGRANTS—GRAIT NUMBERS OF TRAVELLERS—PERILS AND PLEASURES OF A JOURNEY ACROSS THE PLAINS.

[From the St. Louis Republican. July 1st.]
IN CAMP, NEAR FORT KRARNEY, May 24th, 1852.
I find this a very different journey from the one I made a few years ago, when I addressed you from "across the ocean." We left the farm of Capt Parks, Chief of the Shawnee Indians, in the neighborhood of Westport, on the 5th instant, following up the south side of the Kansas river to Smith's Ferry, six miles below Uniontown, (an Indian village and trading post.) crossing said ferry, passing through the Potawattomie Missien, and thence on the usual route to this point, where we arrived late Saturday night, the 22d inst. It commenced raining the day we started, and continued to rain almost every day until we arrived here, not only making the roads heavy and bad, but everything gloomy and dissagreeable. But we had fine grass for our animals the whole way, the rains helping it to grow amazingly, until we intersected the St. Joseph road. The regions of the Little and Big Sandy and the Little Blue, were almost destitute of grass, a miserable country, and trying to stock so early in the season. Being very lightly loaded, and having a little grain, we came on finely. When we intersected the St. Joseph road, we met some St. Louis friends who left St. Joseph on the same day we left Westport. They reported most terrible roads and cholera. From all I can learn, the Kansas, or Westport, route is the best. Fort Leavenworth would be the best if supplies could be had there. The distance is about the same. Previsions were just about as cheap at Kansas and Westport as in St. Louis. Corn and oats 30c per bushel, and mules 20 per cent cheaper than St Louis. I am satisfied it is a great mistake to start from St. Joseph. The difficulties of crossing the river at that point, with fresh, unbroken toams, and that terrible bottom ing the prairies, are equal to fifty miles additional distance through the beautiful country along the Kansas river.

After intersecting the St. Joseph road we met several parties returning with jaded teams and patched up wagons, looking downcast and sorrowful. They had started early, had made insufficient provision for the journey, had ploughed their way through the rain and mud, had lost some of their teams, broken their wagons, buried some of their numbers, and were now trying to work their way back. It is a great undertaking to cross the plains to California or Oregon, and notwithstanding the experience of former years, thousands start off as though it were a journey of a week through an inhabited country, illy prepared with means or mental resources for the long trip through the wilderness, inhabited by thieving savage tribes. Being illy prepared, they encounter accidents and misortunes, they lose their property, they become dissatisfied with themselves and each other, they quarrel and fight—and instead of bettering their fortunes, they impair them, and end their journey with loss, disappointment and disgust.

The emigration is tremendous. Up to to-day.

property, they become dissatisted with themselves and each other, they quarrel and fight—and instead of bettering their fortunes, they impair them, and end their journey with loss, disappointment and disgust.

The emigration is tremendous. Up to to-day, there have passed this fort 8,174 men. 1,285 women. 1,776 children, 3,533 horses, 2,316 mules, 25,269 oxen and cows, 2,654 wagons, 590 sheep, together with a hog and a hand cart. We see people travelling in all sorts of ways. Ox teams are most numerous, and travel up as fast as horses and mules, the rainy, cold weather favoring the cattle. I noticed some very genteel looking young men driving oxen with long whips, whose erect carriage and fleet walk showed them bred in a different calling. It is a trip which tries a man's mettle as well as his aptitude. To perform it successfully, a man must make a drudge of himself, a very nigger, to cook, wash dishes, take care of the mules and oxen, stand guard nights, wade sloughs, sleep in wet clothes, cat like a pig, and kennel like a dog. The difficulties and annoyances of the trip are legion. While I am writing I see a young physician of St. Louis, holding the bit of an obstreperous mule in one hand and a dirty dish-cloth in the other, having gone in haste from his dish to kick "devilish mule!"

But not withstanding the difficulties, there is much pleasure. The change of habit, the change of appetite, the free and pure air, all contribute to health. There is something sublime and grand in the new objects of nature which meet our eyes and press on our senses.

No mountains bound our vision by day; no dwelling encloses us by night; the storm drives its course along, the lightning gleams in our faces, the loud, sharp thunder roars all around us, and we feel that we have exchanged the luxuries of easy living in the city for the rougher realities of life amid the wilds of nature—near the presence of God. It is well thus sometimes to stand amid the grander exhibitions of nature, wild and fearful though they be. The country we anie story when it shall record the settlement of the rich domain on our western coast, where a State is born in a day, and grown to manhood in a year.

Fort Kearney is a sort of a one-horse affisir, stuck down in the mud on the wrong side of the river, and a long distance from wood and every other comfort, the site of which could only have been selected by some person who did not know what he was doing. But we have been handsomely treated by the officers of the fort. Captain Wharton is a very obliging genileman, wide awake to redress greavances so far as it is in his power, and accommodating to all. We were so happy as to find some old and esteemed friends here, connected with the post. We arrived too late for church service on Sunday morning; but the chaplain, Rev. M. Depui, on being informed that there was a number here from St. Louis, treached especially for us, in the afternoon, a most appropriate and beautiful discourse. We will long remember our pleasant visit of three days at Fort Kearney, where we have been treated most kindly and hospitably.

If I had time I could write you of some Indian depredations, of some murders, of some men lost on the prairies, and of various smaller personal misfortunes, from an attack of cholera down to the kick of a mule, but it is late at night, and we start in the morning on our way. MURDERED BY A MANIAC.—A correspondent of the Detroit Tribune, writes from Almont, July 2d, as follows:—One of the most outrageous scenes occurred here, to-day, I ever witnessed. A man by the name of Wesley Hulbert, who for some time has been laboring under a slight mental derangement, and who has been imprisoned of late in the county jail for an assault upon one of his neighbors, had but just returned, when he again commenced his attacks by threatening to shoot several of his neighbors. A warrant was procured for his arrest, when the constable, with a posse of men, repaired to his residence. On arriving there and demanding him to surrender, he prepared to defend himself, by taking one or two pistols and a musket, repaired to the chamber of a vacant log house, located one mile east of this village, where he formerly resided, and immediately shot one of the men dead on the spot, from the chamber window, by the name of Jacob Mills. As soon as the news reached the village, the citizens hastened to the scene, fired the house, and when he made his appearance shot him down. He received two balls—one took effect in the head, the other through the body. He had not expired when I left the scene; but the wounds were mortal. He had fired several shots at the citizens before the flames drove him from his hiding place. It was truly one of the most affecting sights that could be inagined—witnessed by nearly two hundred inhabitants. The body of Mills could not be obtained till he was secured, as he threatened to take the lives of any who dared to approach to take it away, and consequently remained till it was very much burned before Hulbert could be secured. Mills leaves a large family to mourn his loss, and Hulbert's to regret the unfortunate circumstances that ended his career.

John Hoffman. The paper D was also taken from the files of the Pension Office. The papers B and C were received at the Pension Office, from parties living in the State of Ohio, on behalf of George Lewis Hoffman and Elizabeth Gospecken, as heirs at law of John Hoffman, a private in Captain Lewis' company, and contained the proofs upon which the government acted in regard to the said claim.

John D. Macgregor, of No. 248 West Twenty second street, sworn, says—I am a counsellor-ab-law; the body of the papers "A" and "B" are in the handwriting of Wm. Merrihew; the signature of James Brice is, in my opinion, in Merrihew's handwriting; I am pretty well acquainted with the handwriting of Merrihew; the signature of James Brice is, in my opinion, in Merrihew's handwriting; I am pretty well acquainted with the handwriting of Merrihew; the handwriting of merrihew; the who wrote either the one or the other names appearing upon paper "A;" all I know is, that Mr. Latson told me he knew who wrote the name "Pheebe Hoffman" on said paper; I have seen the paper marked "E" before; I know nothing of myself, or from information, who signed the names of either of them upon paper "E;" no person ever informed me that he or she was the author of the signature Pheebe Hoffman, on paper "A."

Cross-examined—About the time of Capt, Lewis' examination, Mr. Boone was arrested on a charge of the same or similar papers, as appears by the register of the United States District Attorney, which I examined some time ago, Mr. Boone retained me and Mr. Latson to defend him, as we were then partners in the practice of law; the Boistrict Attorney took Mr. Bone as ward, and also their discharge from custody by Justice Bogart. The comments made by the Captain of Police on the official conduct of the magistrate, we copy verbatim:—

William Dall arrested for interforing with the police officer. Discharged by Justice Bogart, to appear at 8 o'clock in the morning before Justice Stuart.

Robert McGowan, James Fox and James Kiacaid, discharged on the same condition.

Remarks by the Captain.—Dall, McGowan, Fox. Kincaid and Welsh are firemen, and were arrested last night, at 11% o'clock, while engaged in a fight between rival companies in Factory street. It required the utmost exertion on the part of the officers to suppress the disturbance—two of whom were struck while discharging their duty; yet, notwithstanding, Justice Bogart nobly austain the officers by discharging their prisoners. The same scenes are enacted over acain, and the popular cay with the pross and the publicagain goes forth—Where are the police?

In addition to the above remarks unade by the police captain, we may add that the parties thus liberated by Justice Begart to the hour appointed, and were held to bail by Justice Stuart for their future good conduct. The police officers did not prefer any charge against them.

Shooting an Officer.—Policeman Coilins, of the First ward, about one o'clock yesterday morning while on duty, endeavored to arouse a German emigrant named Andrew Miller, from one of the benches on the Battery, when the man becoming starmed at seeing the policeman with a club in his hand, placed himself on the defensive, and diew from his pocket a pistel loaded with powder only. The officer, fearing he would discharge it at him, seized hold of the pistol when in the struggle it was discharged, and Collins received a severe wound in the paim of the hand from the explosion of the powder. The accused was taken before Justice Osborn, who committed him to prison for trial.
